

With Each Breath There Is Hope
Joel Futterman 6/25/2020

The insanity and poison of racism has existed before, during and after the inception of the constitution. The constitution didn't recognize people who happened to be women, people who happened to be black, and people who were Native American.

Forced slavery, the Dredd Scott Case in 1857 that stated that people who happened to be black were not American citizens, Plessy V. Ferguson that propelled the Jim Crow laws of separate and equal which was never equal and continued to foster extreme racism, Never Forget: The Devil's Punchbowl – 20,000 Freed Slaves Died After Being Forced Into Post Slavery Concentration Camp in Natchez, Mississippi, the 1000 lynchings per month in the 1920's 30's 40's, Brown V. the Board of Education which took years to happen and hateful attitudes, criminal acts of injustice and horrendous violence continued to thwart the educational, social, and economic mobility of people who happened to be black. The brutality of the criminal justice system, the police, and the powers that be want to perpetuate a status quo that has been going on for over 400 years. People with hateful attitudes deny history and they will themselves to not want to know and understand the poisonous, racist history of the United States.

and the poison of America's systemic racism.

Hopefully the protests will lead to positive change.

Yet the judicial and legislative branches of government will have to enforce these changes or the protests will just be protests. When people say we are all God's children do they practice what they preach? Until people interact with each other in a loving way, eat a meal with people that are different from you, meet families that are different from your family, respect the dignity and worth of each human being, become a waking human being with love and respect for each person no matter what ethnicity, creed, as long as it's a creed of kindness and love, then hateful, poisonous racism will remain.

Reparations should be given to people who happen to be black for the hell that has been inflicted for over 400 years. Reparations and an apology still will not undo America's poisonous racism but it is necessary for America to admit the hell it has caused and continue to cause on people that happen to be black.

Vote these racist assholes out of office. If you attribute any other characteristic to a person because of a physical characteristic that person has then you are a racist.

Racism is ignorant and the racist could be on the Supreme Court or the president of the United States. Ignorance is racism.

Let's hope there is change. In 150 years from now, everyone that is here will be gone. Why can't we be a family?

All systematic policy must be based on four basic principles for the world to truly evolve where we are a family. PEACE, LOVE, HEALTH, HELP THE LESS FORTUNATE
